EYES OF NATION TURN TO OHIO AS IT TAKES UP FOODSTUFFS PROBE

Columbus, O., July 28.—With the eyes of the nation upon Ohio, the first state to inaugurate a state wide probe of the cost of foodstuffs, there are two outstanding features today in the preliminary plans for the probe which will be under way in earnest after the meeting of the prosecuting attorneys of the state Wednesday.

In the first place the probe is to be general and far reaching, according to the announcement of Attorney General Price and the prosecutors who have already called grand juries to bring investigations.

In the second place the demand from the people generally has caused members of the state legislature to seriously consider a special session, if necessary, to give the attorney general and the county prosecutors the needed machinery with which to conduct these investigations.

A third feature might be worthy of mention, it being announced by those interested in results that the probe will be non political.

Charges of food hoarding and wasting come from many parts of the state. The investigation of the Hamilton county grand jury is said to have developed evidence that vast amounts of foodstuffs are spoiling in warehouses and cold storage plants. It is alleged that tons of coffee and sugar are being held in different parts of the state while prices on these two commodities are soaring beyond the ability of the masses to buy.

The attention of investigators will not only be directed to storage and warehouses, but it is said that in some parts of the state the activity of small dealers and hucksters is to be the object of investigation. In some counties it is said that there is an organization of commission men who visit farm houses and keep the prices above normal by threats against the buying the products of the farm, if the farmer sells direct to the customer at a price set by the huckster on his butter, eggs and milk.

That there is general public demand for action is evident from the answers Attorney General Price has received from the prosecutors. It is estimated today that every prosecutor in the state will be present Wednesday when the plan of action will be decided upon. In many of the counties the grand juries to make investigations have been called, pending the return of the prosecutors and in Montgomery and Hamilton counties the grand juries are now at work collecting data and evidence.

Governor Cox has been asked by other states to outline the Ohio plan of action and both the governor and attorney general have decided to ask federal aid in Ohio. "We can do better and more effective work if the nation will co-operate with us," said Attorney General Price today. The city press, notably the Cincinnati Enquirer, says to accomplish the desired result the government must "be added to the league of offense and defense against profiteering."

The alleged shortage and the price of coal is to be included in the investigation. Why there should be a shortage of coal this year, when many mines are idle, is a matter in which government help is particularly desirable, it is said.

Commission men, warehouse owners and cold storage plants have voluntarily come to the front with statements that while there is always a necessary amount of foodstuffs wasted, were it not for these plants to care for the provisions stored, the waste would be greater and the prices higher. The largest cold storage plant in Columbus blames the "willingness of the people to buy at any price" and the "eastern demand" for the present prices.

CONFERENCE IS EXPECTED TO BRING ABOUT SETTLEMENT

Chicago, July 28.—With Governor Frank O. Lowden personally directing, conferences are in session today, which, it is predicted, will bring about a complete settlement of conditions which threaten a complete tie up of Chicago's street car service.

Through the efforts of Governor Lowden, union officials who broke off negotiations with the officials Sunday, have been persuaded to return to conferences with the state public utilities commission, and a basis of settlement which may result in an agreement was scheduled today.

At a mass meeting tonight the outcome of today's parleys will be laid before them.

BEAUTIFUL LOTS IN HUDSON PARK SOLD SATURDAY

The biggest single real estate sale ever held in Xenia occurred on Saturday when S. M. Hudson, land investor of Terrace Park, Ohio, opened up the property of the Harbine estate, renamed Hudson Park, in the north end of the city, and sold 35 lots and the fine old brick home on the place at public auction.

The sale marked the transferring of a property that has been in the Harbine family for 45 years. The beautiful shade trees for which the wide lawn was famous locally, including a Redwood tree which is the only one of its kind in Ohio, were planted by the Harbine family many years ago and have grown to make excellent shade for the lots that were sold Saturday. In his introductory speech and afterwards during the afternoon, S. M. Hudson, who platted the lots and put them up for sale, urged that the new buyers preserve in as great a measure as possible, these beautiful shade trees. He further urged that, while alignment in building houses was most desirable, that new builders should not hesitate to locate their houses as to preserve the trees.

A large crowd of buyers was on hand for the sale and the bidding was lively, all of the lots bringing good prices. The tract represented an original investment of $15,000, including house and all the land, and the sale totaled $27,730, which netted a profit to the investor, S. M. Hudson and his sons, of approximately $10,000.

The fine old Harbine homestead, which is at present occupied by the family of Dr. J. H. Webster, was bid in by T. H. Bell, for Attorney W. L. Miller, who will remodel it and occupy it as a home. The house sold for $7,000, which considering its interior fittings of fine hand carving and the best quality of wood work, was considered cheap. The house included land over 100 feet wide running from Detroit street to the newly opened extension of King street in the rear.

The highest single price paid for a lot was paid by Findley M. Torrence, who bid in the fine, large lot at the corner of the Fairground road and King street for $11,140. The lot is the largest in the plot and is in a good location. The corner lot at Detroit street and the Fairground road brought $925 and was sold to George and Andy Hanninger, who also purchased No. 2 lot, next to the corner. The two lots sold for $1,710. The lots on Detroit street, up to a point north of the house, and the lots south of the house on both sides of King street, brought good prices, selling in the neighborhood of $600 to $800.

The lots on the north end of the King street extension and on Harbine avenue, the short intersecting street from Detroit to King, sold the lowest of any, some of them selling for a few dollars over $200.

The opening up of the Harbine addition will be of great benefit to the north end of the city and it is expected that several beautiful homes will soon be erected there. The hand of progress has long since swept past the old estate, with its stately home and grounds, many homes having been erected north of it on the Springfield pike.

Like the Roberts estate, the Harbine grounds have been standing as an unbuilt area, which building progress has been trying, and in some cases has succeeded in passing. Mr. Hudson purchased the section just a few weeks ago, and quickly platted it and opened up the temporary streets. He has given Xenia a new addition that will no doubt develop into one of the prettiest suburbs in the city.

A. H. Cummings and his son, Ralph Cummings, of Pittsburgh, were the auctioneers of the sale, the younger man selling the property, while his father worked in the crowd. There was little delay, and the auction ran off smoothly, the bidding being lively and there being little dallying with the buyers.

The lots and their purchasers and the amounts paid are given below: Dr. W. H. Finley, $680; Dr. W. H.

The Prince will make a brief official visit to Washington, later visiting New York, where the Renown will be waiting in the harbor. REDS HANG ON TO HEELS OF GIANTS

New York, July 28.—The fast going Giants and White Sox, pacemakers in their respective leagues, will be put to the test during the next ten days.

Both teams must spend the better part of the next two weeks on the road. The White Sox are idle today, enroute to New York to open their season, and the Giants will commence their second road trip tomorrow at Pittsburgh. Kid Gleason's pennant hunters are well fortified against pitfalls they may encounter in the east. They are six games ahead of the second place Cleveland Indians today, and Cleveland must also play away from home. The same holds true for the Detroit Tigers and these two clubs are the only ones Gleason has to worry about for the present.

The Giants can ill afford to slip. They will take to the road with a very slim lead over the Cincinnati Reds. Today they are but a half game in the an of Pat Moran's team.

COUNTER OFFENSIVE PROVES A SUCCESS

London, July 28.—Roumanian troops have launched a successful counter offensive against the Hungarian Reds. The Hungarians have been driven out of all the positions they captured in the Theiss section and have been driven across the Theiss river, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Bucharest today quoting an official statement issued by the Roumanian war office.

ITINERARY FOR WILSON'S TRIP IS OUTLINED

Washington, July 28.—The itinerary for his western trip mapped out by transportation experts of the White House was before President Wilson for his approval today. It will not be made public, White House officials said, until it has received the official O. K. of the president which will probably not be until the return to the White House tomorrow of Secretary Tumulty, who is at Mial, N. J. Besides conferring with two Democratic senators—Thomas, of Colorado and Marcus A. Smith, of Arizona, the president was to have ten minute appointments today with Senator E. S. Johnson, of South Dakota, and Rep. Upshaw, Georgia; Rep. Steenerson, Minnesota; Rep. Hudspeth, Texas; Rep. Saunders, Virginia and Rep. Howard, and Rep. McKeown, of Oklahoma. It was said that practically all of these shorter conferences were in connection with the speaking trip.

The fact that the president was recently represented by Senator Spencer, of Missouri, as believing developments through the state department would clarify the Shantung situation, together with the fact that he worked far into the night gave rise to a report today that some announcement with reference to this phase of the treaty might be forthcoming in the very near future. This report, however, could not be verified either at the White House or at the state department.

HUNDREDS OF TURKS LEFT ON BATTLE FIELD

London, July 28.—Fifteen hundred dead and wounded Turks were left on the field after two clashes with Greek patrols near Smyrna and Aidin, in Asia Minor, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens today. Greek reinforcements were rushed up when the fighting began.

There have been numerous clashes between Turkish and Greek troops in the Vilayets of Smyrna and Aidin since the Greeks were landed on the coast of Asia Minor.

Johnston, 28, of Uvalde, Texas, was almost instantly killed and hand when the airplane Payne was piloting fell 200 feet at Hazelhurst field today as they were circling for a landing. Johnston saw service overseas and returned only three months ago.

NEGRO KILLED IN RACE RIOTS IN CHICAGO SUNDAY

Chicago, July 28.—Two more negroes were shot and seriously wounded early today in the race riot that for 15 hours has made a battle field of the negro district on the South Side. As a result additional police guards have been thrown up through the district.

Casualties of the rioting thus far are one negro known to be dead, one white man reported killed and scores injured. Thirty men, whites and negroes, are being held in jail for investigation.

Chicago, July 28.—Mounted police and armed patrolmen are on guard today in the negro district on the south side, following race riots in which one negro boy was killed, two persons probably fatally wounded and more than 100 less seriously hurt.

The trouble is said to have been caused by an attempt by negroes to invade a bathing beach customarily used by the white folks. Tugustus Strauber, accused of hurling a brick which struck a negro boy swimming in the lake and caused him to drown, was arrested.

As news of the trouble at the beach spread, mobs of whites and blacks quickly formed and scores of clashes took place, in which clubs and stones were hurled and a few shots fired.

Police authorities threw 40 reserves into the district and early today order had been restored.

WATCHMAN ACCUSED OF SLAYING CHILD

Chicago, July 28.—Formal charges of murder were lodged today against Thomas Fitzgerald, a night watchman, who confessed Sunday that he had slain six year old Janette Wilkinson and hidden the body in the coal bin in the basement of his home.

A coroner's inquest which will seek to determine just how the girl was slain was scheduled to be held today. Fitzgerald confessed he had choked the girl to death to stifle her cries after he had enticed her into his room with a promise of candy.

The girl disappeared last Tuesday and Fitzgerald was arrested Wednesday. His confession was secured after hours of grilling by the police.

LAW EXPERTS GO OVER PACKERS REPORT

Washington, July 28.—A staff of department of justice experts is going through the voluminous report of the federal trade commission on the meat packing industry with a view of determining whether the evidence warrants prosecution of the "big four" under Sherman anti-trust law. It was learned today. The commission's report is in seven chapters and goes exhaustively into the activities of the meat packers. Two chapters of the report already have been made public.

HUGHES FAVORS LEAGUE

Washington, July 28.—The prudent course for the United States to pursue would be to enter the proposed League of Nations "with reservations of a reasonable character, adequate to our security, which would meet with ready assent and thus establish a condition of amity at the earliest possible moment," Charles Evans Hughes, President Wilson's republican opponent in the last presidential campaign, stated in a letter addressed by him to Senator Hale, of Maine, which was made public today.

Hughes' declaration for reservations was made in response to a communication from Hale, in which the Maine Senator, expressed the opinion that the United States "may safely enter the league," by the senate "attaching certain reservations to the proposed covenant which would limit the participation of the United States in the league."

"Many of us in the senate are in favor of the United States entering a league of nation provided that in doing so we do not sacrifice the sovereignty of traditional policies of our country," Hale added.

"There is plain need for a league of nations in order to provide for the adequate development of international law for creating and maintaining organs of internal justice and the machinery of conciliation and conference and for giving effect to measures of international cooperation which may be from time to time agreed upon," Hughes wrote in reply.

"There is also the immediate exigency to be considered. It is manifest that every reasonable effort should be made to establish peace as promptly as possible and to bring about a condition in which Europe can resume its normal industrial activity.

"I perceive no reason why these objects cannot be attained without sacrificing the essential interests of the United States. There is a middle course between aloofness and injurious commitments.

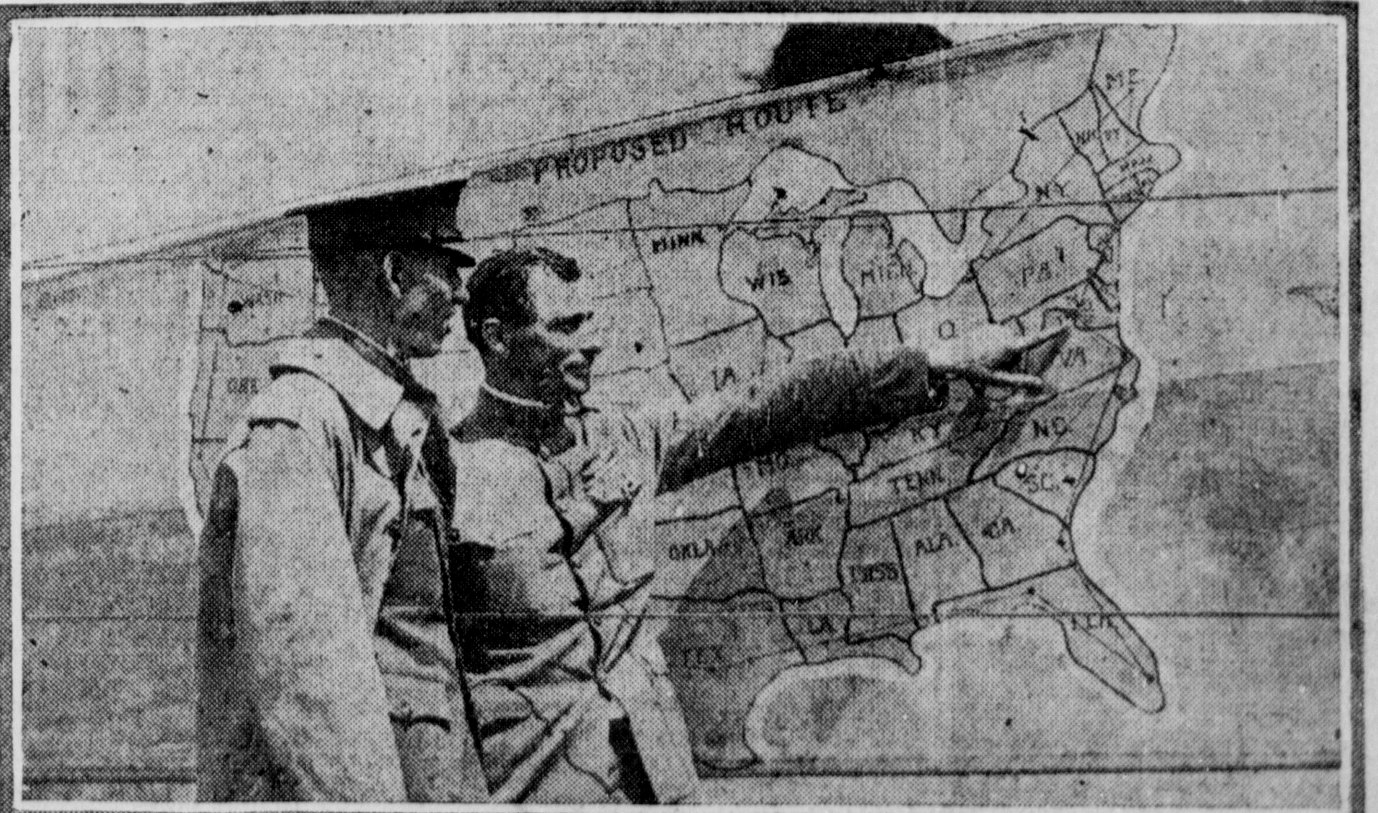

"There is merit enough in the proposed plan to make it desirable to secure it, if proper safeguards can be obtained," Hughes continued "but it is just as futile to exaggerate its value as it is to see nothing but its defects. One must take a light hearted view of conditions in the world to assume that the proposed plan will guarantee peace, or bring about a cessation of intrigue and of the rivalries of interests, or prevent nations which cannot protect themselves from being compelled to yield to unjust demands where for any reason great powers deem resistance inexpedient. Rather, the proposed covenant should be viewed as a mere beginning and while it is important that we should have a beginning, it is equally important that we should not make a false start."

In proposing four reservations to the league covenant, Hughes stated that "if the senate gives its assent to the treaty with reservations, the concurrence of the president will still be necessary as ratification 'will not be complete without his action and responsibility for a refusal to give ratification with the senate as a part of the instrument of ratification, would thus lie with the president.'"

REGULARS FAIL TO SHOW UP AND LOCALS GET BEAT 17 TO 3

It was a carnage, a terrible slaughter that was palmed off on an unsuspecting gallery of fans at the Cincinnati avenue ball yard Sunday afternoon, when a mere semblance of Bill Foley's Reserves were quashed, beaten and utterly overwhelmed by the Dayton Norwoods, a second-rate club of amateurs by the score of 17-3.

While the team that was beaten at the yard Sunday afternoon bore the name of the Xenia Reserves it was in name only, for the splendid outfit that started the season here with a rapid succession of victories, was skeletonized until only about three regular Reserves appeared in the lineup Sunday. In all fairness to the management of the club, it must be stated that the crippled lineup was entirely due to the unsportsmanlike conduct of a number of the ball players in not showing up at the yard and notifying Manager Foley of their intentions to stay away.

Crippled already by the absence of Frank "Deacon" Bath from the lineup, and then shorn of all stars of former days by their failure to appear, the Reserves presented a sorry appearance. The Bellbrook trio, Weaver, Weller and Mills, simply did not show up and did not worry about offering an excuse. This also was true of DeAtley of Port William, and of Leahey of Xenia. Bill Koontz, Springfield hurler, could not be present and presented an alibi, sending a man in his place. He was the only player to take the trouble to notify the management and his conduct in the matter was the only one beyond reproach. The action of the other pastimers shows unsportsmanlike conduct.

Despite the crippled lineup the Reserves put up a brave fight, playing a crowd of minute-men substitutes. Locinsky, who was sent to pitch by Koontz, would have gotten by with support but minus this asset the visitors scored 13 runs off of him in the first two innings. Russell Day, of Yellow Springs, who had been performing at first, took the mound in the third and had a little more success, only four runs being garnered off of his delivery. The ball players on the local club did not have any trouble solving Antrims offerings and three doubles and a triple were netted off the pugilist. The three runs they scored prevented a white washing. The feature of the weird affair, was Slaty's home run with the sacks cloudy. At least it went for four bases and four runs were scored on the drive. Only 13 hits were secured off of Locinsky and Day, and it is safe to say that half of them should have been easily fielded.

The Reserves will likely take a rest next Sunday and Manager Foley will scout for a new outfit that will pull the team out of the present slump and get them back on the same footing where they were at the beginning of the season.

The lineup: Xenia—Bath ss-3b; Stiles 2b; Day 1b-p; Randall rf-c; Thornhill 3b-ss; Earley lf-1b; Bowser c-rf; Green cf; Locinsky p-lf; Thompson lf. Norwoods—Slaty ss; O'Malley cf; V. Antrim 3b; Blatz 2b; Livingston 1b; Hubbard c; Zanders lf; Hole rf; I. Antrim p. Referee—McCormick. The score:

Xenia 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H
Reserves 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 3 9
Norwoods 4 3 0 1 0 0 2 0 1 17 13

TALE STRANGER THAN FICTION MAY BE UNWOUND

Cleveland, O., July 28.—There was a possibility today, according to officers engaged in the search for the murderer of Daniel Kaber, that solution of the mystery surrounding the killing of the Lakewood publisher may reveal a tale stranger than the fictional fantasies of Arabian Nights.

Investigators today were delving into oriental lore and criminal characteristics in an effort to find connecting links which will result in a complete reconstruction of the events of ten days ago which culminated in the slaying of Kaber as he lay helpless. From the oriental flavor which was seen in the clues left by the murderer, detectives recalled that a hand-fashioned dagger from a file was a favorite weapon of orientals. Interpretation of mysterious markings on a razor found in the Kaber home revealed it to be of Syrian origin and police are now devoting considerable attention to a clue which at the time was passed over.

It, too, brings the orient into the case. One of the first discoveries of officers endeavoring to trace the Kaber assailant was the fact that valuable oriental rugs had been dragged to the rear of the Kaber home presumably by the murderer. The first theory was that this was done to deaden the footfalls of the fleeing murderer. Now police are investigating the history of the rugs and what if any associations Kaber may have had with either persons from the orient or with persons familiar with the customs and practices of the east.

Coroner Byrns expected a report today on the results of the chemical analysis of organs of Kaber's body and may decide to reopen the inquest early this week should the report indicate that arsenic found in Kaber's stomach came from an unknown source.

Hornbill's Remarkable Nest. Most wonderful of all is the nest of the hornbill. The hen bird lays her eggs in a hollow in a tree, and as soon as she is settled on them the male bird walks her in with clay, leaving just space for her head to stick out. He feeds her, and there she sits, not only until the eggs are hatched, but until the young are big enough to come out.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

May be Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—This Letter Proves It.

West Philadelphia, Pa.—"During the thirty years I have been married, I have been in bad health and had several attacks of nervous prostration until it seemed as if the organism in my whole body were worn out. I was finally persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made a well woman of me. I can now do all my housework and advise all ailing women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will guarantee they will derive great benefit from it."

There are thousands of women everywhere in Mrs. Fitzgerald's condition, suffering from nervousness, backache, headaches, and other symptoms of a functional derangement. It was a grateful spirit for health restored which led her to write this letter so that other women may benefit from her experience and find health as she has done.

For suggestions in regard to your condition write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

SAYS MOTHER KILLED HER SON OF 3 BECAUSE OF JEALOUSY

MRS. GLADYS DUNN.

Thomas E. Bligh, of the Pittsfield, Mass., police force called in the trial of Mrs. Gladys C. Dunn, for the murder of her three-year-old son, Joseph Allen Dunn, Jr., told of his visit to the Dunn home on the day of the alleged murder and of a statement made to him at that time by Mrs. Dunn. According to Bligh, Mrs. Dunn said she and her husband had quarreled and that he left her, returning only the night before the shooting. The morning of the shooting they quarreled again and she attempted to use a revolver, he quoted her as saying, but was prevented by her husband. Later in the day, the officer said Mrs. Dunn told him she obtained possession of the revolver and shot the child, as it was sitting in its wicker chair. District Attorney Ely, in presenting the Commonwealth's case, charged that jealousy of the child was the motive for the shooting. The state says she was jealous because the boy stood between her and her husband's love. Mrs. Dunn is facing a charge of second-degree murder.

DRILL EXHIBITED IN XENIA WHICH DRILLS SQUARE HOLE

And now comes the drill that will bore a triangular, square, oblong, hexagonal, octagonal or quadrifaced hole.

Impossible! Yes, but on, how true! The versatile drill was introduced in this city Saturday by James Robinson, former Xenian, who left here about four years ago, and who is a cousin of William Finley of this city. Mr. Robinson was traveling for the company producing the drills.

Mr. Robinson visited Xenia Saturday in the interests of the Detroit Hexagon Drill Co., of Detroit, Mich., and incidentally he gave local machinists and mechanics their first view of the work of the new drills that do not confine their activities to cutting round holes, but bore them out square or in any other desired shape.

To the person who knows the amount of work, energy, time and money it has taken in the past to make a square or many-sided hole in steel, the advantage of the new drills will be easily and quickly appreciated. Heretofore, machinists have found it necessary to drill a round hole, and then by chiseling or filing, work it into a square or hexagon hole, as the case may be.

However, hours and money have been saved by the new invention, which is just being marketed extensively. The drills fit the ordinary drill press and can be operated on metal or wood. A comparison of the time that has been saved by the use of the Hex drill in place of the old method, is interesting, the following comparison being taken from a record of the Ford Motor Company of Detroit, Mich. The test was taken in making 37 sets of dies and 114 punches. Four holes in each set of dies made 148 holes and two holes in each punch made 228 holes, or a total of 376 holes necessary. By the old method it took three hours per hole, or a total of 1128 hours. The total time by the Hex drill was 257 hours, or a saving in time of 871 hours or 78 per cent.

With the Hex drill the same work was done in 11 minutes per hole, and 30 minutes' bench work per hole, a total of 41 minutes per hole, or a total time for the job of 257 hours.

The invention shows the remarkable strides being made in the technical world, and that even the impossible is being accomplished in this era of invention.

Sepoy Preparedness.

In the Madras presidency in the first half of the last century recruit boys—sons of old soldiers—were kept with each Sepoy regiment, clothed, drilled and fed and enlisted as soldiers when they attained the age of sixteen. The system had something to recommend it, as the state got a trained youth as a soldier instead of a country bumpkin who had all his training to learn.

Labor in Politics.

In 1872 on the 23d of May the first national convention of workmen, as a political party, at New York nominated Gen. U. S. Grant for president. Grant was the regular Republican candidate.

The Hour of Need

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Homesick and heartsick, Viola Glenn arrived at a settled conclusion as to the best course she should pursue. Since she was a child she had been motherless. Then for six years her father and herself had made their home with a distant relative, an old widow lady. At length Mr. Glenn had been called West to look after some property near the Mexican border. From a place named Waller he had written Viola that his duties would detain him longer than he had thought.

It was only that Viola spent many pleasant hours with her fiancé, Ernest Dare, that she was willing to remain away from her father. Then came a second cause of anxiety and loneliness. Her lover received a letter from Mr. Glenn asking him to come to him, as his engineering experience would be of much benefit. Viola Glenn was tearfully solicitous when Ernest imparted to her this intelligence, but he assured her that within a few months both he and her father would return. Then came a long spell of silence on the part of both father and lover. Viola wrote repeatedly but received no word in reply. She could only decide that they had gone on business to some remote place and had been delayed unexpectedly. Viola was patient and hopeful for over a month. Then—

"I can endure this separation from those I love no longer," she told her relative. "I am going to find father and Ernest, at least find out what their strange silence means."

Viola arrived at Waller, the town from which her father had last written her. It had but one hotel and there Viola registered, and early the following day started out to make inquiries regarding her father. She met with the severest disappointment. She learned at the post office that up to six weeks previous her father had received mail at the general delivery. Of Ernest there was no trace whatever. Viola had very little ready cash, but she decided that in time her father must return to Waller. She learned where she could live at a lower rate than at the hotel with a Miss Ora Mayne, who occupied a pleasant little cottage, and there Viola established herself. From the first Viola Glenn liked the pleasant lady, ten years older than herself, who in turn became greatly interested in her guest.

Within a week Viola felt that she had found the dearest friend and comforter of her life. In fact, she fairly loved the gentle-spirited lady, attracting her as if she were some dearly beloved sister. As to Miss Mayne it seemed as if she could not do enough to show her sympathy and affection for the lonely girl. She never tired of the confidence imparted to her by Viola concerning her father and her lover. She entered into all the details of Viola's romance. She built up a theory that relieved Viola's mind as to the continued absence and silence of Mr. Glenn and Ernest Dare.

"They must be away together," she convinced Viola, "perhaps in some place beyond the frontier where there are no mail routes."

"But I cannot remain here indefinitely," submitted Viola, "at least without going to work and earning something. My money has nearly given out and I cannot become a burden on you."

"A burden?" repeated Miss Mayne spontaneously. "My dear, what would my life be without you? Since I have known you I have learned to love you so that I feel toward you as if you were an own daughter."

One morning Viola was helping about the house, as was her usual custom. She was carrying the scrap basket out to the rubbish heap to burn the litter and sweepings she had gathered up and had lit it, when an envelope attracted her attention. Miss Mayne, she had noted, had received a letter the day previous and apparently this was its container. The envelope was just igniting when Viola observed its superscription. A thrill traversed her frame.

"Why, it's father's handwriting!" she gasped, but as the envelope was consumed in the flames Viola gradually convinced herself that her strange supposition must be a delusion.

"She was in her own room the next morning when she heard a commotion at the front door, a cry of excited delight from Miss Mayne, and then—Oh! it could not be possible! the hearty, joyous tone of her father and, marvel of marvels, of Ernest Dare!

Viola rushed to the spot, first to be enfolded in the arms of her father and then by turns to cry and laugh in the clasp of her restored lover.

Those were mad, agitated moments and then, the first excess of emotion subsiding, Viola glided to the side of her kind friend, Miss Mayne, and wound her arms affectionately about her. "Oh, father!" she cried, "through all my suspense and loneliness she has been like a mother to me!"

"May I remain so, dear Viola?" interrupted Miss Mayne tremulously. "For this is my husband."

And then the mystery was explained. Mr. Glenn had married her secretly before he went away to find Ernest Dare, who was being held for ransom by Mexican bandits. Father, lover restored to her, a new mother welcoming her with earnest love, Viola Glenn felt that her cup of joy was filled to the brim.

TWO HUNDRED AT FIRST U. P. PICNIC

At least 200 people attended the picnic which was held by the First United Presbyterian congregation, Friday afternoon at Kilkare park, and it was one of the most highly enjoyable gatherings ever held by the church people.

A feature of the picnic was the large attendance of the older people of the congregation, but all ages were represented.

Everybody was seated for supper at 6:30, at one long table, and every picnic dainty which the season affords was included in the menu. Tennis, boating, bathing and roller skating amused the crowd.

Acid-Stomach

Yes, indeed, more often than you think. Because ACID-STOMACH, starting with indigestion, heartburn, belching, food-repelling, bloating and gas, if not checked, will eventually affect every vital organ of the body. Severe, blinding, splitting headaches are, therefore, of frequent occurrence as a result of this upset condition.

Take EATONIC. It quickly banishes acid-stomach with its sour, bloating, pain and gas. It aids digestion—helps the stomach get full strength from every mouthful of food you eat. Millions of people are miserable, weak, sick and ailing because of ACID-STOMACH. Poisons, created by partly digested food charged with acid, are absorbed into the blood and distributed throughout the entire system. This often causes rheumatism, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble, ulcers and even cancer of the stomach. It robs its victims of their health, undermines the strength of the most vigorous.

If you want to get back your physical and mental strength—be full of vim and vigor—enjoy life and be happy, you must rid of your acid-stomach.

In EATONIC you will find the very help you need and it's guaranteed. So get a big 50c box from your druggist today. It fails to please you, return it and he will refund your money.

A PATRIOT IN WHOM THERE IS NO GUILT.

We have a lot of great men in this country. There is Woodrow Wilson, the pacifist statesman and wet democrat; John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie, angels of philanthropy; Thomas A. Edison, electrical wizard; John R. Mott, christian propagandist, and many others representing many different degrees of a nation of advanced civilization.

But we believe, taken as a whole, that there is no greater man in the country than Ex-President William Howard Taft. With his other marked abilities, he is so broad minded that ordinary events to him are non-essential, whilst the problems of a nation's crisis are probed with a master hand. Take as a single instance of his splendid patriotism, his standing on a New York platform with President Wilson, favoring a League of Nations, on the heels of the G. O. P. "round robin" opposing the League. As brave an act of political patriotism as ever enacted.

And how inconsistent that "round robin" was in the face of the fact that the basic principle of the League came from the brain of Taft himself, and not from Wilson, and that the Republican national platform of only the previous year had endorsed the League.

And all through this Senatorial babbling against the League, Mr. Taft has gone right along favoring it, and even stumping the country in his magnificent bravery in trying to save the grand old Republican party from destruction at the hands of its own members.

Does anyone think that Taft excuses Wilson for the crisis the country is experiencing? Listen to him—here is what Taft says on this subject:

"The situation which confronts us now in reference to the ratification of the treaty is one created by serious mistakes of policy committed by Mr. Wilson.

"The partisan character of his administration during the war, together with his appeal to his countrymen to elect a Democratic Congress in November, 1918, created a condition of personal and political antagonism toward him among Republican leaders, which was shared by a majority of the American people. This was shown in the results of the election.

"Notwithstanding this, Mr. Wilson persisted in continuing the same partisan exclusion of Republicans in dealing with the highly important matter of settling the results of the war.

"He selected a commission in which the Republicans had no representation and in which there were no prominent Americans of any real experience and leadership of public opinion.

"With such a commission, his unusual course in going abroad himself, as President, greatly emphasized the personal element in the framing of the treaty and intensified the general tendency to oppose anything that he might bring home, because of his apparent wish to dictate the policy of the world and to monopolize the credit for it."

But notwithstanding this partisan-ship on the part of Mr. Wilson, patriotic Taft is using the whole of his great influence in helping him have the Treaty ratified. He has even gone so far as to suggest certain "interpretations," to mollify the "round robin" fellows, in order to have them vote for ratification. President Wilson can control 45 democratic votes, but he must also get 19 republicans, to insure ratification. These Ex-President Taft is helping him to get.

In speaking of these proposed reservations, patriot Taft says: "I am confident that actual operation of the treaty after ratification would bring about exactly the same result as that which would be attained by the acceptance of these interpretations and reservations, but it seems to me to be the part of statesmen to recognize the exigencies, personal partisan and political, of a situation in seeking to achieve real progress and reform."

That's the kind of a man Wm. H. Taft is—a broad-minded statesman, willing to make concessions, willing to do anything, to save the peace of the world. We bow a knee and take off our hat to him.

Tannin.

Paraguay has valuable resources, the most important of which is quebracho, which is particularly rich in tannin.

THE TRACTOR NOT PERFECT YET.

The tractor is here to stay. Although its development may be little beyond the experimental stage so far as construction is concerned, it has passed that stage so far as use is concerned, and as the different models are perfected it is bound to take a more and more important place in the agricultural world.

That is the consensus of opinion of farmers, dealers and manufacturers attending the National Tractor Demonstration and Show at Wichita, Kas., last week.

As proof that the tractor has passed the experimental stage so far as use is concerned, one tractor manufacturer cited the fact that the number in use is doubling each year. As proof that the tractor is still in the experimental stage so far as construction is concerned, the same manufacturer cited the fact that thirty-three different models shown at the demonstration at Salina, Kas., last year were not at this year's show and were not being manufactured, and that nearly as many models at this year's show have been on the market less than a year.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS
BY JANE PHELPS.
SANDRA IS ANNOYED BECAUSE OF HER COLORING
CHAPTER XXV.

I never had been so bored in my life as I was at that dinner. In the first place I didn't understand just the man next to me said. I suppose I might have done better if I had paid attention. But Everett and that woman at the other end of the table were talking so intimately all the time that I kept stealing a glance at them. Everett caught me once and smiled reassuringly. But the next time he caught me looking at them he scowled.

"Mr. Graham is awfully fond of red-headed women," I started. The stage whisper of the woman opposite me had reached me distinctly.

Mr. Leveridge, the heavy man next me whose name suited him so well, laughed a little before he remarked: "Of course, I'm not deaf."

"I hadn't thought of it, but you are exactly the coloring of the first Mrs. Graham. She had just such hair as you have."

The first Mrs. Graham! I suppose they spoke of me as "the second Mrs. Graham!" How flattering to be a man's second choice! I felt like screaming! I hated them all, every single one of these old friends of Everett's who knew "the first Mrs. Graham," but I especially hated the man next to me, and the handsome woman with whom Everett was talking.

Mr. Leveridge looked at me, then chuckled. I hated him still more when he chuckled.

"Never mind. You are young. He won't get a chance to make it three of a kind."

I suppose he imagined himself cleverly facetious. But I thought him a stupid fool, and pretended not to hear that, or anything else he said to me. I suppose it was childish in me to do so, as I heard him chuckle to himself each time that I ignored him.

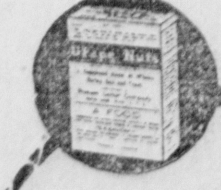

That dinner was one long drawn out agony. What people could see in sitting so long, eating and drinking and talking I couldn't see. I hoped they would dance or something afterward. If I had to listen to some other old man or old woman talk I should be wild. That I might also be an uninteresting companion never entered my head—not then.

To my disgust there was no dancing afterward. The women all got up from the table, and left the men drinking liquors and smoking. At home the men and women always left the table at the same time. I thought it awfully foolish for the women to get trailing off into the drawing room alone; and was frightened when I thought I should have to talk to them.

"What beautiful hair you have, Mrs. Graham," Mrs. Garry, the woman whose speech I had overheard at the table said to me. "It is just like the first Mrs. Graham's hair. She was a lovely woman."

"I heard you remark on my hair at dinner," I said coldly; thinking she would be chagrined. But she only laughed.

"It is very unusual that a man marries two women of the same color."

A Ration Of Grape-Nuts
should be on every table daily.
It's a builder!

ering; therefore noticeable. You wear sapphires too. Another point of similarity. She wore a great deal of that color, and had the most gorgeous jewels; sapphires, to wear with it."

Just then some women came up and spoke to her, and she said no more. Perhaps she would have asked me if I had sapphires also; it was dreadful to have the "first Mrs. Graham" constantly thrust at me. And I could say nothing to Everett about it because he had forbidden me to mention her. I wished he would forbid also his friends to mention her.

By and by the men came strolling in. Then cards were brought out and two tables made up. The rest preferred to talk. I like to play, but as no one suggested that I do so, I could not very well offer. The next hour dragged unmercifully. Everett was playing partners with the same woman he took in to dinner. They were winning, and were both laughing and talking as if they were having the best time ever, while I was being bored to death by that Mr. Leveridge who sat next me at dinner.

No one ever welcomed a departure more than did I that night.

"I should have died if that old Mr. Leveridge had talked to me any longer!" I said to Everett when he asked me if I had enjoyed myself.

He laughed, and said:

"You must not call him 'old,' it might hurt my feelings. He is just my age," but he said it so kindly I was emboldened to reply.

"He's an old bore anyway. Do I have to go to many of those dinners, Everett? I didn't enjoy myself one single little bit."

"No—you aren't absolutely obliged to go. But as I enjoy them and it would look strange if I did not take you, I hope you will be contented to go for my sake."

I said no more altho I was wild to tell him that I didn't care to hear about "the first Mrs. Graham," or to be told my hair was like hers. I should have liked also to have repeated Mr. Leveridge's facetious remark. I was so disgusted I wanted to talk about it. Of course I couldn't after his prohibition.

"Go right to bed," Everett said when we reached home, "I shall read a while." But I knew by the way he kissed me that I had not displeased him.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"Who pays the tips, when a married couple are at a hotel at a summer resort? Does the husband or the wife give the tip to the chambermaid and waitress?" asked Grace.

"In many cases the husband gives the male employees their tips; and the wife tips the female employees. Some men prefer to do all the tipping. There is no iron clad rule about it," answered her older married friend.

MOTORAIDS

Some manufacturers equipping their motors with aluminum pistons, advise against cleaning the carbon by means of oxygen, because the extreme heat generated may injure a piston.

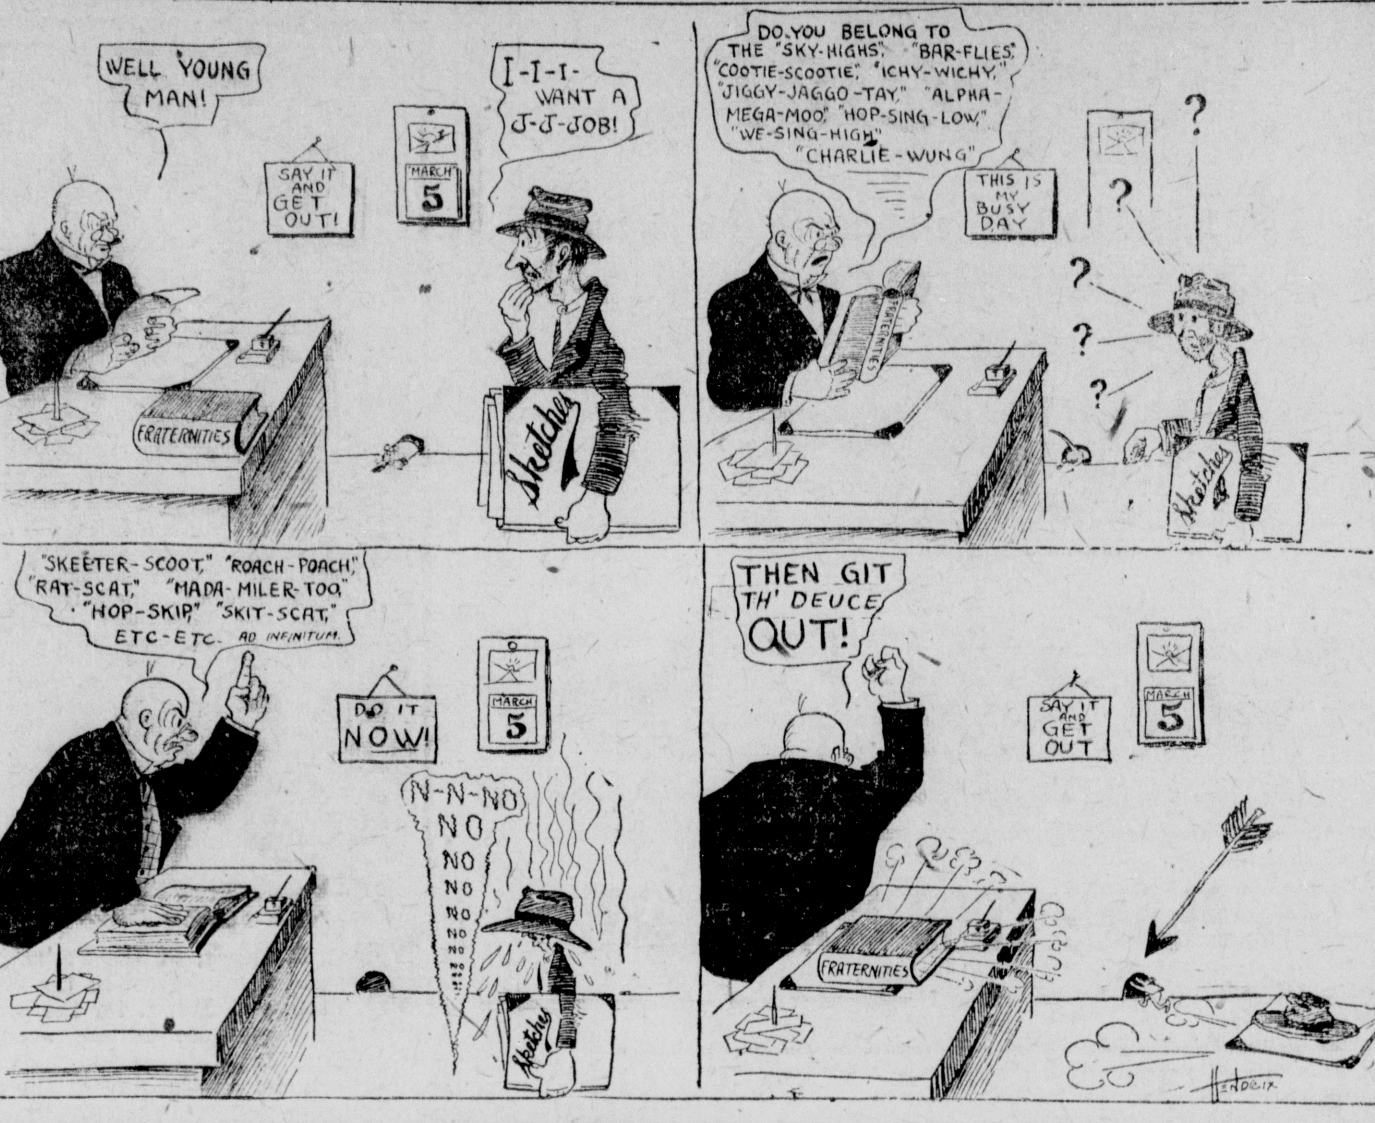

Blowouts are largely the result of a tire whose material has deteriorated a condition due mainly to the gradual weakening and decay of the rubber. Nothing is so great a cause of this decay as friction and its consequent heat.

Various substances can be used for lapping pistons, and among them are fine emery dust, ground glass and rotten stone. The last gives better results than the others. When glass is used there is a chance for some of it to become imbedded in the piston or cylinder metal. Drivers of racing cars, in preparing their motors for a race, usually employ rotten stone, using emery only when the work must be done quickly. A little cylinder oil is mixed with the stone so as to form a thin paste. In lapping the piston it should be given both a reciprocating and oscillating motion.

Be Agreeable.
The true art of being agreeable is to appear well pleased with all the company, and rather to seem well entertained with them than to bring entertainment to them. A man thus disposed may not have much learning, nor any wit; but if he has common sense, and something friendly in his behavior, it conciliates men's minds more than the brightest parts without the disposition.—Addison.

Three Capital Crimes.
"When I was a boy," states Mr. Patch in Stockton Herald, "there were three capital crimes—murder, blasphemy, and lying abed in the morning. Of the three, murder and blasphemy might sometimes be forgiven, but late rising never. One of my grandfathers frequently got up at four o'clock on a winter morning, built a fire in the cook stove and then would sit down by it and go to sleep."—Kansas City Times.

Too Deep for Him.
An Irish sailor, after pulling in 50 fathoms of line, muttered to himself: "Sure, it's as long as today and tomorrow; it's a good week's work for five men." More of it yet. "The say's mighty deep, to be sure." Then he suddenly stopped short; and, looking up to the officer on watch, he exclaimed: "Bad luck to me, sorr, if I don't be-lieve somebody's cut off the other end of this line!"—Congregationalist.

COLLIER'S BOUGHT BY CROWELL COMPANY OF SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, July 28.—Direction and control of Collier's Weekly, including all books and other publications issued by P. F. Collier, Inc., passed to the Crowell Publishing Company, under the terms of a contract signed in New York City last week.

The deal was closed by George Buckley, president of the Crowell Company.

It will mean one of the biggest industrial developments in Springfield in years and will bring Springfield before the world more than ever as a publishing center. Collier's Weekly now has a million circulation each week.

Within a year the plant will be transferred from New York City and the magazine and all Collier books published here. The Crowell Company now publishes the American Magazine, The Women's Home Companion and Farm and Fireside, a farm paper. Before the war it published Every Week, but was forced to discontinue it because of government paper regulations.

Work was started several weeks ago by the Frank Hill Smith Engineering Company of Dayton on an addition to the plant in West High street. It is being built on the Jackson property. The company purchased property from the first alley west of Wittenberg avenue to Lowry avenue and north in Lowry beyond the alley running east and west.

Mr. Miller said it will be necessary to construct a new plant for the Collier publications. How many employees it will bring here, or the extent of the Collier's present force is unknown to him. The details will be worked out later, he said.

This will preclude the possibility of Springfield getting along without a larger postoffice.

Besides Collier's Weekly the Collier Company publishes thousands of books every year. The Harvard Classics are included. Mark Sullivan is at present editor of the weekly.

When Mr. Buckley was here several months ago, he said it was unlikely that the editorial department of any of the publications would be moved here.

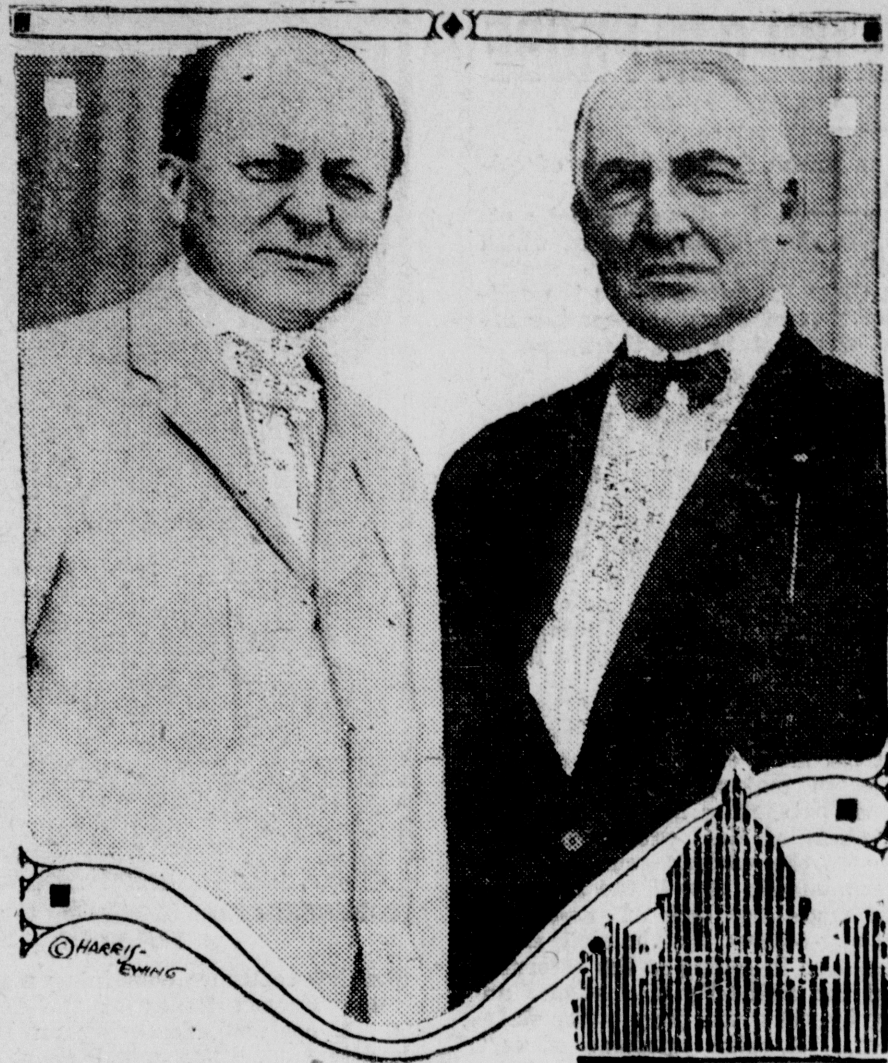

CATTLE MEAN MONEY.

George Silver of West-Jefferson, last Monday delivered to Dave Elliott and J. C. Ganes 18 head of cattle, weighing about 1400 a head, at $16 per hundred. The cattle brought the amount of $4,044.80, or about $225 a head. And we wonder why "round" steak is high.—Madison Press, London, (Ohio).

LONDON TO HAVE HEAVY

TIRE FABRIC FACTORY
The work of the reorganization at the London fabric mills is nearing completion. Heavy tire fabric will be manufactured. Fourteen looms will be operated, and it is expected to produce 6,000 pounds of the fabric per week. These fabrics, used in making automobile tires, are said to be much in demand, and a successful career for the factory is freely predicted. A number of the business men of London are interested in the new enterprise.

RIVAL PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES FROM SAME STATE ARE SNAPPED AT CAPITOL

In senators Pomerene and Harding, Ohio has two presidential possibilities. Senator Harding is considered by his friends as the logical Republican candidate, being from a pivotal state. Pomerene's friends have launched a nation-wide boom to place him in the presidential chair for the democrats.

EAST HAS ITS OWN IDEALS

Not All Wisdom, Virtue and Honesty Can Be Claimed as the Prerogative of the West.

If it is more important to introduce ready-made cigarettes than it is to supply an example of unparalleled commercial honesty, China owes us a great deal. Otherwise it is vice versa. As an expert manager and as a member of the committee on foreign trade of the National Association of Manufacturers, I have learned much from foreigners in methods of merchandising, in courtesy and in breadth of business vision. The credit losses of American manufacturers average less in their dealings with the far East than they do in their domestic relations. Unjustified claims, petty exactions and semi-dishonesty are less frequent in foreign than in home trade. An incident which happened in a New York hotel may give a hint as to why orientals are slow at accepting American ideals at our own valuation. An export manager was discussing with his Bombay agent the details of a campaign to cover the markets of India and Afghanistan. An American friend, calling the manager aside, whispered:

"How can you bear to talk with a nigger?"

The exporter explained his long friendship with the Indian and the importance of their business relations. Then he turned to introduce the two men. The Bombay merchant had hastily put on his right glove and shook hands with his hand covered.

"Why the glove?" the exporter asked when they were alone.

"How else could I return the insult of his first glance without embarrassing you, good friend? The fact that he did not appreciate the insult makes my enjoyment the keener."—Exchange.

FIRST SETTLERS IN GEORGIA

James Oglethorpe Leader of Colonists Who Had Homes Where Now Is City of Savannah.

The first white settlers in Georgia landed at Yamacraw bluffs, on the site of the future city of Savannah, 186 years ago, and the event is now annually commemorated as "Georgia day." James Oglethorpe was the leader of the colonists, who made the trip from England in the good ship Ann, commanded by Capt. John Thomas, and the party included 35 families, besides General Oglethorpe and Rev. Thomas Bosomworth. Through Mary Musgrave, the Indian wife of a Carolina white man, the colonists obtained the consent of the Creeks to establish a settlement, Mary acting as interpreter, accounts say. Just a week later the first house was commenced and the settlement that sprang up on the spot later became the city of Savannah. It is noteworthy that Hebrews were among the first settlers in Georgia. Forty Jews were sent out to the colony and reached Savannah in the July following Oglethorpe's landing. A government was soon organized and one of the first acts of the trustees, passed in August of 1733, was to prohibit rum in Georgia. Before the year was passed a party of Saxons and another of Bavarians reached Georgia.

Fellow-Beings.

In that simple and beautiful record of a holy life, the Journal of Joan Woolman, there is a passage of which I have been more than once reminded in my intercourse with my fellow-beings: "Some glances of real beauty may be seen in their faces who dwell in true meekness. There is a divine harmony in the sound of that voice to which divine Love gives utterance." Quite the ugliest face I ever saw was that of a woman whom the world calls beautiful. . . . On the other hand, there are faces which the multitude at the first glance pronounce homely, unattractive, and such as "nature fashions by the cross," which I always recognize with a warm heart-thrill; not for the world would I have one feature changed; they please me as they are; they are hallowed by kind memories; they are beautiful through their associations; nor are they any less welcome that with my admiration of them "the stranger intermeddled not."—Whittier.

Merely Changed Music.

How bands were once sometimes recruited for the navy is suggested by an old tale of maritime warfare. When the frigate United States captured the British frigate Macedonian, about a hundred years ago, it also captured a band of eight French, German and Italian musicians. The band had first put to sea in a French frigate, which was captured by a Portuguese vessel and brought into Lisbon. There the musicians had been persuaded to enlist on the Macedonian. After their capture by the United States one judges that they played just as cheerfully for American sailors as they had already played for French, Portuguese, and British.

Variation of Dialects.

Dialects of variation in spoken languages are the result of peculiarities of speech, first involuntarily adopted by individuals and then perpetuated and extended by the unconscious imitation of others. They are not premeditated or assignable to any definite cause, except the constant tendency of language to become diversified. The same causes that have produced different languages among different nations tend to produce dialectic variations in the language of every nation. The results are apparent, but the cause cannot be defined.

LEGAL AND EXECUTIVE MACHINERY OF ENTIRE STATE TO BE USED IN PROBE

Columbus, Ohio, July 28.—The whole legal and executive machinery of the state government is to be immediately directed toward an investigation of the constantly mounting cost of living in Ohio, with vigorous, if not drastic action against profiteers and illegal combinations of food and coal gamblers.

Following several conferences with Attorney General John G. Price, Governor James M. Cox today officially submitted a request to the attorney general that the state's legal machinery be immediately directed toward investigation of what the chief executive terms a crisis.

Conferences between the Attorney General and the Governor were preceded by a survey by the Executive Departments which, the Governor says, disclosed evidences of unlawful practices in traffic of food stuffs. It is stated that the evil rests largely in the concerted policy of cold storage plants—that they are being operated for the indefensible purpose of preservation of high prices.

The Governor asserts that his investigation shows that the law of supply and demand has been "well nigh, if not completely destroyed," and collusion is charged between the cold storage and commission men for two purposes—to maintain higher prices now and to guarantee trafficking holders of food later on an abundance in unproductive season, upon which high cost is to be imposed.

The uniformity of price in food stuffs throughout the entire state is cited as prima facie evidence of collusion.

Furthermore, the Governor calls attention to the coal situation of which he asks investigation.

The Chief Executive urges the calling together of every prosecuting attorney of the state and the summoning of special grand juries under state authority where ever necessary.

Attorney General Price has shown the greatest interest in his conferences with the Governor and it is stated that he will at once enter into this important work in which the entire public of the state will be interested in an unusual degree.

Following is the Governor's letter to the Attorney General outlining the situation in unheeded of prices in food-stuffs in Ohio:

In a letter addressed to Attorney General Price the Governor assures him of his most earnest personal assistance in making the investigation and instructing him to seek the co-operation of the prosecuting attorneys of the various counties. He also recommends that if the attorney general finds any lack of co-operation in any county, that he shall show no hesitation in giving to the attorney general the authority to institute an inquiry by the grand jury under state auspices. "A crisis is ahead of us," says the governor in his letter, "unless provision is made now. Government was intended as the agency to initiate remedial measures in behalf of society. In this thought we are thoroughly convinced of the propriety of vigorous and if necessary, drastic action upon the part of the state."

Mr. W. F. Maher having bought Nerv-Worth in Dayton, it was no stranger to him when introduced in Xenia and this is what he could knowingly say about it:

"Was very nervous and run down from trouble with a bad stomach. I suffered extreme pain after eating. Bloating and had gas on my stomach. Couldn't sleep at night and would wake at all hours suffering from pain.

Bought my first Nerv-Worth in Dayton, and now, after taking only two bottles my stomach no longer bothers me. I sleep fine now and have no more gas or bloating. FEEL LIKE A NEW MAN. I can certainly recommend Nerv-Worth."

INVESTS ALL HIS MONEY IN MELONS

Ever since the aviation field opened at Fairfield, Theodore Bosnak, a Greek, has been a quiet, peaceable resident of the village, working day and night, at his peanut, ice cream and pop corn business.

A few days ago he drew out the $600 he had in bank went to Dayton, and invested every cent in a carload of watermelons, and other fruit, which he ordered sent to Fairfield.

When the fruit began arriving, inquiries as to the mental condition of Bosnak began.

Saturday morning he was adjudged insane by Probate Judge Marshall and committed to the State Hospital. His wife and three children are penniless, with the exception of the little refreshment stand, and the carload of watermelons that they don't know what to do with.

An effort will be made to have the commission merchants who sold Bosnak the fruit take back that which is in good condition.

The Heart Mender

By RAY KILBOURNE

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Oh, dear Miss Travis, you are indeed a mender of hearts!"

Vivian Moore spoke with fervor and her eyes glowed with the sincerest gratitude and devotion. She sat on a stool at the feet of her hostess, her hands resting in her lap, looking up into a face that bore a winning, patient smile of gentleness.

"Why do you say that, Vivian?" inquired Ora Travis.

"Because they all say it. There isn't a girl in our set who hasn't you to thank for good advice and kindly deeds. And oh, to think of it! Just from what you said I got over my wicked tiff at Bartley Peyton, I was proud and unreasonable and I should have died of a broken heart if Bartley had gone away. And now I've had my lesson, and we've made it all up, and we're engaged, and I am so happy!" and the tears came over Vivian's eyes, and she kissed Ora's hands, and then snuggled closer to her, Miss Travis softly stroked the golden hair. A far-away look came into her calm, thoughtful eyes.

"My dear," she said, "I count it a blessing if I have been helpful to you.
It is pride or jealousy that severs many souls that otherwise would have been happy and united. Many a headless girl wrecks her life by allowing some petty trifle to change her whole career. I am going to make you my first confidant. Five years ago, like you, I was capricious and exacting.
I was engaged to Ransome Drury.
This is his picture," and she opened a locket and showed to Vivian a handsome, engaging face. "All this happened far away from here. His parents wished him to marry another girl and that made me cherish hard feelings towards them. One evening Ransome told me that he would have to spend the following one at home to save some family friends. Out of unknown prejudice against them I flared up and told him that if he preferred their company to my own, he need not come back again. He was a proud, sensitive man and we drifted apart.
Then I heard that he had arranged to go abroad, and then that my cruelty had driven him to dissipation. His parents died and he was lost to the knowledge of his former friend. I have not heard of him for two years and I shall carry to my grave the memory of how I wronged him."

That pathetic interview Vivian Moore, who had become Vivian Peyton, often recalled. She did not tell her husband of the debt of gratitude
she owed Miss Travis, nor of her mournful experience.

Bartley would sometimes take an afternoon to make his collections and Vivian would accompany him in the automobile. The machine broke down in front of the Gresham flats one afternoon, and the repairer from a near garage, whither it would take advised Bartley that it would take three hours to mend the break. Bartley ordered the man to return the auto to the flats when ready, and suggested that Vivian stay there with the tenants while he went to the office and came back later to drive her home.

The lady in question welcomed Vivian to her apartment and soon interested the young wife telling of the people who lived in the house. She had some gruel on the kitchen stove and finally, after a glance at the clock, arose and said it was time to visit a young man on the next floor who was very ill.

"I feel very pitiful towards Mr.
Drury," she explained to Vivian, "for he seems to have no friends or relatives in the city."

At once Vivian was struck by the mention of the same name Miss Travis had pronounced. "Won't you let me accompany you?" she asked. "I will be interested in seeing how these poor people live."

It was three weeks after that when Bartley by mere accident overheard
some gossip between the chauffeur and the housemaid. The former was telling of the strange interest of his mistress in a Mr. Drury who lived in the Gresham apartments.

"You'd think he was an own brother," said the chauffeur. "Every day she has taken fruits and delicacies to him, and for two days I've driven him
and her around the parks."

A sensation of being disturbed, of dawning mystery afflicted Bartley as he went in search of Vivian. He found her in the library. She greeted him with unusual warmth and tenderness.

"Oh, Bartley!" she spoke, "I'm going to ask a great favor of you. I want you to find a position for a young man."

"Named Drury?" dryly observed
Bartley.

"Why, how did you know? Yes, that is the person. He has just recovered from a fit of sickness and—don't frown, dear, until you have heard my story. Yes—two stories."

And then for the first time Vivian told of her visit to Miss Travis and of her discovery of tenderness came into the soul of Bartley Peyton, as he listened to her confession.

"I don't know which to most admire,
you or Miss Travis," he said. "You are both heart menders, it seems. So my loyal little wife is plotting to bring those two together? Very well, my darling, I will help you in that."

Just Once.

Edward had had trouble with the new boy in the neighborhood, and always got the worst of it, having had black eyes at different times. Soon after this the new boy was ill, and the teacher told the pupils of her class to remember the sick boy in their prayers, as it would be a long time before he would be strong again. Edward replied that he would, but he was heard to say, "Just let me meet him once before he gets good and strong."

Full Glory of Cherry Blossoms.
Blooming of the cherry trees in Japan occurred earlier this year than usual, owing to the exceptionally warm weather of the early months.
The blossoms were out in great profusion on Sunday, March 30. The higan sakura trees in Ueno park were in full bloom; the yoshino sakura, or common variety, came out in full fluorescence on April 3, the anniversary of the first emperor of Japan.
Everybody in Japan is enjoying the arborescence of springtime.

No Mystery About Them.
Poets are fond of alluding to the picturesque tradition that pearls are made from the dew of heaven, but the fact of the matter is that those milky balls just merely represent the efforts of the oyster to cover up an annoying grain of sand and render it less irritating.

LADIES TO DRIVE RACE AT DAYTON

A ladies' hitching and driving contest, half mile heats, best two in three, will be one of the race features of Thursday afternoon at the Montgomery county fair, opening September 1. A purse of $55 will be divided between the four leaders. No horse that has been in training during the 1919 season can be driven. The entries will close August 30.

People from all parts of the country will be interested this year in the automobile show under the grand stands. All the leading dealers in the county will exhibit their 1920
models.

August 16 is the final day for entries in the girls' domestic science contest, in which $30 in prizes, in addition to a free trip to Columbus
during farmers' week in January, 1920, will be awarded. Any girl in the county under 18 years of age January 1, 1919, is eligible to enter.

Thirty dollars in cash prizes are also offered in the boys' and girls' stock judging contest, which for which can be made until September 1. Each contestant will be required to place and give reasons for placing a ring of draft horses, dairy cattle and lard hogs.

The third annual dog show, which each year has grown in popularity and number of entries will again be held. Twenty-five different classes are provided, with separate awards in each. Arrangements have been made to care for all dogs not in personal charge of their owners.

FISHERMEN MUST PAY MORE THAN HUNTERS

Copies are being sent out of the new law requiring the licensing of all fishermen over the age of 16, whether residents or non-residents of the state.

Under this law, which was approved by the governor on July 2,
and therefore goes into effect on October 2, "No person shall take or catch any fish by angling in any of the waters of the state of Ohio, or engage in fishing in such waters without first having procured a license to do so."

Said license shall be procured in the manner provided for taking out hunting and trapping licenses. The applicant shall pay to the clerk having authority to issue
such license, the sum of two dollars, together with the sum of twenty-five cents, as a fee to the clerk; provided, however, that any person under the age of 16 years, may take or catch fish by angling without a license.

The provisions of the hunting and trapping license section of this state insofar as the same are applicable to licenses shall apply to all licenses issued under this section."

Complaint frequently has been made that a large proportion of the money raised by licensing hunters has been used in the propagation and distribution of fish, whereas fishermen were not required to pay a license. (Other states, notably Indiana, license fishermen, but only non-residents of the state.)

However, the statute above quoted provides a fee for fishermen practically twice as great as for hunters, and in this respect it is thought to be excessive. Also, it is pointed out that this law tends to work a hardship on the old persons, many of them poor, who have been in the habit of whiling time away and at the same time contributing to the family larder by fishing in the streams of the state.

Ohio farmers are much interested in the forthcoming tractor demonstrations which have been arranged by the State University.

Thirty tractors of all makes will be used in these demonstrations and all kinds of work will be undertaken.
These larger demonstrations are taking the place of the smaller demonstrations of recent years.

The following dates will be of interest to Greene county:
Columbus, July 28 and 29. On Johnson farm, 5 miles west on Broad street.

Middletown, August 1 and 2. One-half mile south of American rolling mills, on Yankee road.

Farmers who contemplate buying a tractor or those who want information concerning tractors would do well to attend these demonstrations.

"The End of a Perfect Day."
Do not let the man who says, "This is the year when I am going to show you how to farm it," think that he will have all clear sailing. He will meet wildcats and bears at every turn and he may consider himself lucky if he gets off with a whole hide. The big thing is to stand on the far end of the field when the harvest is gathered in and be able to say, "I did what I said I would!"

The Merit of a Book.
The crowning merit of a book must always be its practical usefulness. If it makes you more cheerful, or more amiable, or more pitiful, or more appreciative of what is beautiful, or more resolute to follow what is good and noble, then the highest purpose of a book is gained.—David Pryde.

Better Off Than His Dad.
Nowadays a man thinks he is having a rough time when he has to help move the furniture around a bit, forgetting that his glorious dad used to spend a week out in the back yard beating the dust out of carpets and thought nothing of it.

MORE RED BLOOD AND STEADIER NERVES FOR RUN DOWN PEOPLE

The World Demands, Strong, Vigorous,
Keen-Minded, Men and Women

It has been said of Americans that they work their habits overtime.
Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork.
By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drinking; excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses.
Timidity, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardice, are due in a large measure to abused nerves.
People with plenty of red blood corpuscles and steady healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support.
There is hardly a nerve-shaky man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but as men have been, a woman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-feron every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted.
Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded, then the pills which you dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-feron is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and is not at all expensive. Sayre & Hemphill and all other druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

How the Stars and Stripes Is Looked Upon As the Emblem of Liberty By All Nations

Copyright, 1919, The International Syndicate.

WHATEVER our forefathers may have achieved as to our meddling in the affairs of other nations, or how we may be able to escape our share of the responsibility for the peace of the world, it is certain that the American flag today commands more respect from all nations than ever before. It is the emblem of equal opportunity to all and wherever it may wave it means freedom and happiness to all who are willing to do right.

We all have pride in the beauty of our national emblem and a still greater pride in the principles it stands for and every American on foreign soil is thrilled with the sight of the Stars and Stripes. It is the proudest emblem of them all and it now floats in every part of the world as a message of the liberty and the goodwill of the greatest nation that time has created. Since the war it has been raised somewhere in every land.

After the Spanish-American War we made our boast that the sun never sets on the American flag for it flies over our embassies and consulates in every part of the world. This is especially true of the present-day, for in addition to this we now have flags with our troops which are scattered over the entire globe and in every land where freedom is desired some native will secure an American flag and let it wave in the breeze.

No Flags Carried in Battle

During the present war the flags were not taken on the battlefields, at least by any of the Allied nations and there was none of the spectacular acts of "saving the colors" which were enacted in former wars. The flags were carried to certain places near the front and left there while the men went into battle so none ever reached the trenches unless they were tiny ones owned by individual soldiers. This was because the Allies did not wish Germany to know just what regiment or even what nation they were fighting. Of course, each regiment had its own flag which was always carried in reviews, marches, etc., and some of these flags were decorated especially by the French, who have always regarded the Americans as the people who came to save their land from the Huns.

They seemed nearer to the United States than to any of the other nations, perhaps because of Lafayette's aid in our fight for freedom of more than a century ago. When it became known that the "Yanks are coming" the residents of every little French village secured an American flag and hung it out beside their own to give our boys the welcome they deserved, and when the boys reached these little towns many of them declared that the decorations were so filled with our flags that it resembled a Fourth of July celebration at home. Wherever our men were billeted an American emblem was hung out in their honor and they were treated as if they were sons of the family. Indeed, in homes where the sons had been killed while serving in the French Army the women mothered our boys as if they were their own children.

With the sole exception of the countries of the Central Powers our flag seemed to become a solace to the people, and now even these countries see it flying in various quarters.

To be sure the Germans are whining like whipped curs and still sending forth propaganda to keep their people from having any liking for our colors yet many who witnessed the coming of the Army of Occupation secretly welcomed the flag of liberty in their midst. It was a fearful downfall to the pride of the Junkers to see the American flag wave over the castles of the Rhine, yet down in their hearts they knew wherever the Yankees were stationed that law and order would prevail.

The Submarines

The surrender of their deadly instruments, such as the submarine, that scorpion of the ocean, which sent women and children and civilian non-combatants to their death, was perhaps the most bitter pill of all and when these instruments of warfare are seen at our docks with the American flag waving proudly over the German flag it is wormwood and gall to the Huns' souls. These submarines are even being made recruiting stations for our Navy and a large number of young men after going through the deadly boats have at once enlisted in order that the sea may be kept free from German submarines forever. At present there is one of the largest type at a dock in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. It was surrendered to the British by the terms of the armistice and interned at Harwich, England, for a time. It is the U111, and because of its large cruising radius is thought to have been one of the submarines that did such deadly work on the American Coast in 1918 and for this reason Great Britain gladly permitted it to be shown in this country with the American flag waving above its periscope. Another spent some time in Baltimore, and Annapolis, and served as a recruiting office while still others were anchored at Boston and places farther south. All these are of the latest type and show the large amount of time and money which have been spent on their building and which in the mind of the hated and cruel Von Tirpitz were to win the war for Germany.

Our flag has been carried along with England's emblem into St. Paul's Cathedral, and they still fly in many places side by side. In France it is said that it is as common a sight as the French flag and is frequently saluted by civilians as they pass on the street.

France Decorates The Flag

The Stars and Stripes has been decorated many times by the French and on two occasions they have taken particular pains to have the ceremonies on German soil. One of these was when the flags of the 369th Regiment were decorated with the Croix de Guerre at Ungersheim, Alsace, the province which the Germans took from France after the War of 1870. The natives, who all through these years have loved France, although they were bound down by German tyranny were delighted at the great crowds which came out to the ceremonies. This province will be given back to France by the Peace Treaty, and as Germany blames the United States for winning the war and our President for many of the Peace terms, it was perhaps a worse blow to their pride than when the United States Marine Corps flag was decorated at Leutendorf, Germany, after the regiment's triumphal march from the Marne to the Rhine.

Along The Rhine

The towns of the Rhine, with the castles and vineyards on either side, fairly bristle with American flags for a good part of the river is policed by our Army of Occupation, and wherever the men have headquarters a huge American emblem waves over it. At Cochem our men seem to have an unusually large flag, which flies from the castle, where many of the officers and men are quartered and the little town across the river sees it haunched up at sunrise and down at sunset. This town is on the Moselle, about twenty-four miles southwest of Coblenz and is one of the most beautiful and fertile places in Germany. Its castle is said to be one of the largest in that section and is the headquarters of the American Fourth Army Corps. All along the Rhine and its tributaries the American boys keep watch. They patrol the Rhine using the excursion boats which in former years carried the American tourists on this river. The boats are the same and the men hear the same legends which always made the Rhine one of Europe's most attractive spots. The little red roofed houses, the vineyards, the Lorell, the Mouse Tower and the castles are the same, but the double eagle of Germany no longer floats over the steamers, the beautiful Stars and Stripes is there to proclaim to the German people a liberty they never knew under the war mad Mr. Hohenzollern. How different are the lives of these people than those who live in Berlin where all is riot and bloodshed.

Even poor little Luxembourg, which was so badly treated by Germany, has felt the power of the Stars and Stripes for the American Army of Occupation came into that little country to relieve the French and just in time to save it from riot and bloodshed. The Luxemburgers were ready for a revolution but the American soldiers said no. They knew the men from the United States meant what they said and Luxemburg was saved from a blot on its historical page. Thirty-five officers and privates were given the distinguished silver cross just after they entered Luxemburg. They received their honors with their flags flying, a flag which is now a familiar sight in that land once so brutalized by the vicious Hun.

In The Frozen North

In far off Siberia our flag waves every day when our men go out for a hike in either Vladivostok or Archangel. Those at the latter place have had many skirmishes with the Bolsheviks and unfortunately a number of Americans have been killed. The people in that section are mostly Russian peasants who have come to regard the American flag as the greatest emblem in the world. It is so cold there and Russia in such a demoralized condition that they have been forgotten by their own country, so the Red Cross and the American soldier with his great emblem of freedom is looked upon as their only hope.

Over at Vladivostok the American soldier, by doing police duty, has saved the day for they have kept guard over the vast amount of shipping which has come across the Pacific to this port. They have also helped the people, who like those of Archangel, are suffering from Russia's chaos. Every day these men go out for a hike with the American flag flying. The children are particularly fond of our flag and look upon it as the one under which they may some time live. They are rapidly learning English from the soldiers and many of them declare that they are saving their hopes to come to the beautiful United States. So when the peace of the world is finally settled and immigration once more opens up people from all parts of the world will flock to this country and "the land of the free" and so as each Flag Day rolls around greater honors will be shown to our flag, the emblem of justice and fairness to all.

POISONOUS INSECT MAY HAVE BEEN EATEN BY SMALL BOY

A poisonous insect which he may have swallowed while eating blackberries he gathered along the fence corners, or acute indigestion due to the quantities of the fruit in his stomach, are supposed to have been responsible for the critical illness of the 5 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Brown of the Wilmington pike.

The boy became ill almost immediately after eating the berries, and his condition was alarming for several hours. Monday morning it was thought that he was out of danger. Dr. R. L. Haines of Paintersville used a stomach pump and freed the boy's stomach of its contents.

Nature's Wonderful Work.

Nature gives to every time and season some beauties of its own; and from morning to night, as from the cradle to the grave, is but a succession of changes so gentle and easy that we can scarcely mark their progress. —Dickens.

HARRY D. SMITH TO ATTEND CONFERENCE OF CO. PROSECUTORS

Prosecuting Attorney Harry D. Smith, expects to attend the conference of prosecuting attorneys of the state which is to be held in Columbus Wednesday for the purpose of discussing the matter of a state wide inquiry into the high price of food stuffs.

Prosecutor Smith says that he is of the opinion however, that federal action against the big packers and other combinations existing to keep up prices is the only thing that will have the desired effect in ending abnormal prices for all commodities.

"I do not think that probes or grand jury inquiries, particularly in the smaller counties, will be of any particular value" said the prosecutor. For instance in Greene county, there are cold storage or commission houses among which combinations to keep up prices might exist. The thing to do is to get at the fellow higher up. The government can help also by releasing the enormous amounts of food held in storage for the army.

Mr. Smith says that he is hopeful that the airing being given the high prices in local probes will be effectual in causing federal investigations which will break the combines.

Author of the "Doxology."

The author of the "Doxology" was the English bishop, Thomas Ken (1637-1711), who, in 1691, was deprived of his see (Bath and Wells) as a non-juror. His most widely known hymns include the morning and evening hymns, "Awake, My Soul!" and "Glory to Thee, My God, This Night," both of which end with the famous "Doxology," "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

Amphibious Soldiers.

A Frenchman has suggested that with a little training the soldier may be amphibious to a certain degree. It is contended that with practice a body of soldiers with their arms and accoutrements could cross a stream 80 feet wide by merely walking across on the bottom with the water over their heads.
